

Summer Celebrations - cancelled

Tansi Everyone!

In her book, "The North-West is Our Mother", Louis Riel's great-grand neice, Jean Teillet, speaks to Indigneous leadership qualities. Today, as we experience the challenges faced by COVID and ongoing changes to our former norm, it is interesting to reflect on the qualities and values for which leaders were recognized.....courage.....vision.....inspiration....respect.....

Most Pow-wow's and Metis festivals will not be taking place this summer but why not explore leadership in your communities or within your family by helping and volunteering in order to make someone else's burden a little lighter. If you can help your family out by working and living in the city, below is a list of potential employers, compiled by the Off-Campus Coordinator, Mr. Lampos, in Student Services....why not check one out. If you require help with your resume or job search, please do not hesitate to reach out.

STAY POSITIVE, STRONG AND HEALTHY.....KEEP MOVING FORWARD. ekosi

'Indigenous leaders -were chosen for their gifts of grace and fine oratory, qualities of courage and vision, and their charisma....An Indigneous leader gained his place because he inspired the people who loved and respected him. He was expected to work only for the benefit of his people, not in her own interest'. Ref: Teillet, Jean. "The North-West is Our Mother".

INDIGNEOUS STUDENTS ENTERING THE U OF A IN SEPTEMBER.....THIS IS FOR YOU!!

University of Alberta online event: Next Steps Information Session

The Next Steps Information Session is specifically for Indigenous students and will cover topics like updating marks, accepting admission offers, submitting documents, managing the tuition deposit, and more. Students will also have an opportunity to ask any general questions about applying to the University of Alberta or the Indigenous student experience in a Q & A session following the presentation.

Please share this opportunity with students that may be interested in attending.
